

Happy 2018 from your friends at Stapleton Pediatrics!!! We hope you all enjoyed your New Year's celebrations and are looking forward to a wonderful 2018 filled with health and happiness for your entire family!

On January 2, 2007, Stapleton Pediatrics officially opened its doors to the kids and families in and around Stapleton. Over these past 11 years, we have been truly blessed to be part of such a wonderful community. As we are all growing-up together, we have certainly seen incredible growth and change; yet, our mission at Stapleton Pediatrics has remained consistent: to take care of your children as if they were our own! We are constantly striving to maintain a personal and warm environment while delivering the most up to date and highest quality of pediatric healthcare.

As we enter our 12th year in practice, we are thrilled to announce the addition of another warm, caring and extremely competent pediatrician – Dr. Katie Dickinson. Please see Dr. Katie's photo and bio below and join us as we welcome her to Stapleton Pediatrics and our fantastic community of providers, staff, families and of course, kids!

Dr. Katie is a California native who completed her pediatric residency at Penn State Children's hospital and received her Doctor of Medicine at Penn State College of Medicine, where she was awarded excellence in pediatrics. Prior to this she received her Bachelor of Science degree at Georgetown University, where she was also a member of the lightweight women's rowing team. After spending many years on the east coast, Katie is excited to move back west to join family in the Denver area and take advantage of the outdoor opportunities. Katie enjoys hiking, running, yoga, gardening, fly fishing and traveling. In addition to primary care, her clinical interests include newborn care, breastfeeding, foster care and adoption, and adolescent health.

Once again, Happy New Year from your Stapleton Pediatrics' family!
